TEMPLE LODGE PUBLISHING

Temple Lodge Publishing has made available new thought, ideas and research in the field of spiritual science for more than 30 years. Anthroposophy, as founded by Rudolf Steiner (1861-1925), is commonly known today through its practical applications, principally in education (Steiner-Waldorf schools) and agriculture (biodynamic food and wine). But behind this outer activity stands the core discipline of spiritual science, which continues to be developed. Our list features some of the best contemporary spiritual-scientific work available today, as well as introductory titles. If you want to support us, do buy our books or make a direct donation (we are a non-profit/charitable organisation).

Steffen Hartmann, Volker Fintelmann Creating the Future with Vidar

Who is Vidar, and why does this silent figure speak so powerfully to our time?

In the ancient prophecy of Ragnarök from Norse mythology, Vidar confronts and overcomes Fenris Wolf, the force of destruction and deception that threatens the world. But what does this dramatic image mean for modern humanity? In an age marked by illness, social upheaval, war and growing uncertainty, the authors explore how Vidar's strength, courage and attentive listening can become living realities within us.

Drawing on the wisdom of the Edda, Rudolf Steiner's anthroposophy and decades of spiritual, medical and cultural research, the authors invite readers on a reflective journey into the being of Vidar – the quiet guardian of humanity and a guide towards our future. From the mysteries of Christ and Michael to the challenges of evil, disease and the future of anthroposophic medicine, this book offers both spiritual insight and practical inspiration. Particular attention is given to Vidar's connection with healing, including new perspectives on mistletoe therapy and the renewal of medicine in our time.

Concluding with impulses for a meditative path of practice, Creating the Future with Vidar is an inspiring, stimulating and deeply insightful invitation to encounter a spiritual helper whose time has now arrived.

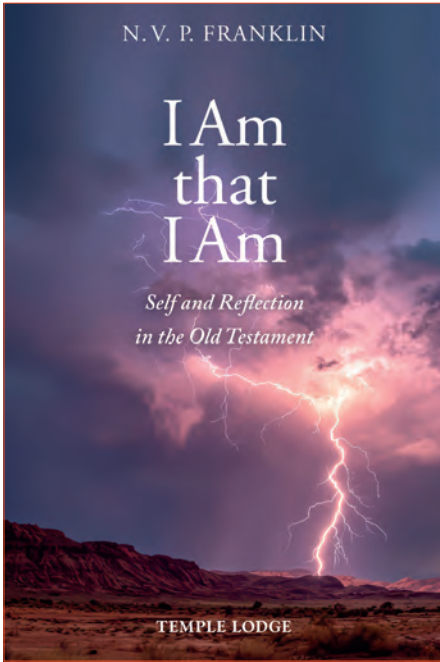

VOLKER FINTELMANN (born 1935) has dedicated his life to the practical and scientific development of anthroposophic medicine. He is the author of numerous books and a sought-after lecturer on medicine and anthroposophy.

STEFFEN HARTMANN (born 1976) studied piano in Hamburg and co-founded the MenschMusik Institute. Since 1997, he has followed a meditative path rooted in anthroposophy. An internationally-active lecturer and concert pianist, he is the author of many books, including The Michael Prophecy and Angel Thinking.

I Am that I Am

Self and Reflection in the Old Testament

'The tour de force is Franklin's focus on the Deity's "I" in the Hebrew Scriptures, inviting the reader to enter the original world of the Jerusalem Temple and experience it – perhaps for the first time.'

– Margaret Barker, D.D., author and biblical scholar

In this original and thought-provoking exploration of one of the Bible's most profound mysteries – the Divine Name 'I AM' – the author uncovers striking patterns woven through biblical texts that have long remained unnoticed. Drawing on the Hebrew Tanakh, Jewish tradition and the spiritual insights of Rudolf Steiner and Jakob Böhme, I Am that I AM outlines a revitalised approach to the sacred affirmation that has shaped religious thought for millennia.

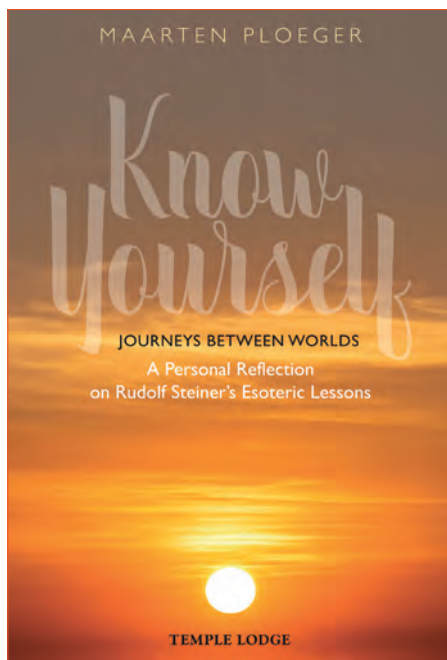

At the heart of the book lies a remarkable investigation into the Hebrew verses containing the words ani and anokhi – the divine 'I' spoken by God throughout the Old Testament. The author argues that these passages reveal striking structural, linguistic and symbolic meanings that were part of Jewish wisdom before reappearing with the 'I am' sayings in the Gospel of St John.

Beginning with the symbolic image of the Twenty-Four Elders and the twenty-four books of the Tanakh, the author guides readers through biblical structure, sacred language, syntax, symbolism and esoteric traditions, including the phases of the Moon in Hebrew. The result is a fresh encounter with Scripture as a living revelation in which language itself becomes a vessel of spiritual reality. Both scholarly and contemplative, I Am that I Am invites readers to rediscover the hidden riches of the Old Testament and the enduring power of the Divine Name.

N.V.P. FRANKLIN is a retired university lecturer. He studied theology at the Russian Orthodox St Sergius Institute in Paris. He has published on Jacob Boehme and William Blake and is the author of Freemasonry and Rudolf Steiner (Temple Lodge Publishing, 2020).

Know Yourself

Journeys Between Worlds

A Personal Reflection on Rudolf Steiner's
Esoteric Lessons

Shortly after the Christmas Foundation Conference of 1923–24, Rudolf Steiner inaugurated the First Class of the School of Spiritual Science, presenting a cycle of nineteen lectures, featuring mantras and blackboard drawings, intended to guide the modern seeker on the contemporary path of inner development. These Esoteric Lessons remain among the most intimate and challenging teachings Steiner ever gave.

In Know Yourself, Journeys Between Worlds, Maarten Ploeger offers a unique and deeply personal response to this spiritual legacy. Through a series of imaginative dialogues, reflections and poetic meditations, he accompanies the reader on an inner journey inspired by Steiner's mantras. A 'traveller' and his wiser 'companion' – the alter ego – explore the thresholds between the visible and invisible worlds, while a higher guiding presence, the 'Voice of the I', gradually reveals the deeper nature of the human being and the path toward self-knowledge.

Rather than explaining the Esoteric Lessons intellectually, this book seeks to illuminate their living, experiential dimension. The accompanying reflections deepen the themes encountered along the way, while three lyrical 'Songs' mark key stages of the soul's journey.

Both contemplative and inspiring, Know Yourself invites readers to enter more deeply into Steiner's path of self-discovery and the timeless quest to know the true Self.

MAARTEN PLOEGER (1944) has been involved with anthroposophy since the age of 21. 'I read Steiner's Reincarnation and Karma back then and was immediately captivated.' He studied Geography. After ten years of teaching Waldorf education in the upper grades, he moved to the lower grades and eventually into school administration. He has published several children's books, novels and poems.

Social and Educational Questions

A Spiritual-Scientific Approach

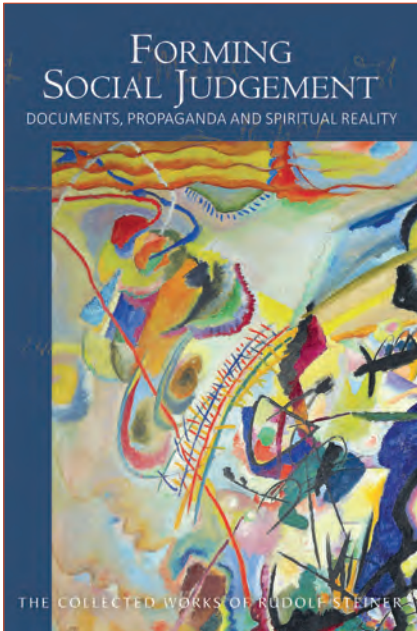

In the aftermath of the First World War, as Europe grappled with social upheaval and the collapse of long-established political and cultural certainties, Rudolf Steiner turned his attention to the urgent question of how society might be renewed from its very foundations. Here, he argues that lasting solutions cannot arise from political programmes or economic reforms, but require a transformation in the way human beings think about the relationship between cultural, political and economic life. Central to these lectures is Steiner's vision of social threefolding, presented not as an abstract theory but as a practical response to the realities of modern materialistic civilisation.

Addressing themes that remain highly pertinent today, Steiner examines the roots of social crises, the responsibilities of citizenship and the freedom inherent in cultural life. Particularly significant are three lectures devoted to education, in which Rudolf Steiner outlines principles that would soon find concrete expression in the founding of the first Waldorf School. Emphasizing child development, artistic activity and the cultivation of independent thinking, the lectures present education as a central task in the renewal of society.

Published in English for the first time alongside an introduction by Simon Blaxland-de Lange, these lectures challenge readers to rethink the nature of education, social responsibility and the future of human community

Forming Social Judgement

Documents, Propaganda and Spiritual Reality

Reflecting on the forces that had brought catastrophe to Europe, Rudolf Steiner discusses how sound social judgement can be formed amidst the challenges of conflicting interests, ideology and propaganda. He references contemporary documents, political developments and the actions of social movements, emphasizing the necessity of grounding judgement in facts whilst cultivating the inner capacities required to perceive the spiritual dimensions of social life.

Presented in the turbulent weeks at the end of the First World War, these lectures offer penetrating perspectives on a period of profound transformation, raising questions that remain strikingly relevant today. Steiner illuminates the historical roles of the nobility, bourgeoisie and proletariat, and the influence of Karl Marx and the emergence of modern class consciousness, whilst formulating his ideas on the balancing of relationships between economics, politics and culture – social threefolding – which would soon become central to his thinking in the post-war period.

Combining historical analysis, social critique and spiritual insight, this remarkable series of lectures – newly translated in English – addresses not only the political and economic upheavals of the time but also the deeper spiritual realities that underlie historical events. This edition features an introduction by Christian von Arnim as well as an index and notes.

RUDOLF STEINER (1861-1925) called his spiritual philosophy anthroposophy, meaning 'wisdom of the human being'. A gifted seer, he drew on direct spiritual insight to explore the deeper dimensions of human existence. His work inspired fresh approaches to many fields of life – education (general and special), agriculture, medicine, economics, architecture, science, philosophy, religion and the arts. Today, thousands of schools, clinics, farms, and cultural initiatives around the world continue to build on his vision.

Rudolf Steiner

Original Impulses for the Science of the Spirit

Christian Esotericism in the Light of New Spiritual Insights

The lectures in this volume, given in Berlin in 1906 and 1907, belong to the upbuilding phase of Rudolf Steiner's work within the context of the Theosophical Society. During these years, Steiner travelled widely throughout Europe, giving lectures on the Western path of esoteric schooling. In between his travels, Rudolf Steiner would return to Berlin, where he lived, and continue his lectures for the local group of theosophists.

These Berlin lectures cover a wide range of subjects, including health, education, volcanic eruptions (in response to an eruption of Vesuvius at that time), planetary evolution, the Rosicrucian way of initiation, the modern science of the spirit, the Lord's Prayer, the blood that flowed on Golgotha, and karmic law. One finds echoes of the more philosophically oriented works that Rudolf Steiner had published in the 1890s, but the central motif of the lectures lies in his completely new approach to the science of the spirit.

Theosophy was at that time mainly concerned with cultivating the old wisdom. Rudolf Steiner, particularly in his new teaching of karma and reincarnation and in his emphasis on the Christ Mystery, was looking toward the future. As he states in the lecture of 15 October 1906: 'Karmic law must above all throw light on our future. We should not think so much of the past, but more of the future.'

This volume is essential reading for anyone seeking to understand the foundations that underlie the mature work of Rudolf Steiner's later years.

MYSTERY KNOWLEDGE AND MYSTERY CENTRES

Rudolf Steiner

Mystery Knowledge and Mystery Centres

Drawing on decades of spiritual research, Rudolf Steiner explores the mystery traditions, sacred centres and paths of initiation that have shaped humanity's relationship with the spiritual world across the ages. From the ancient sanctuaries of Ephesus, Hibernia, Eleusis and Samothrace to the Rosicrucian movement of the Middle Ages, he traces the evolution of esoteric wisdom and its continuing significance for modern spiritual life.

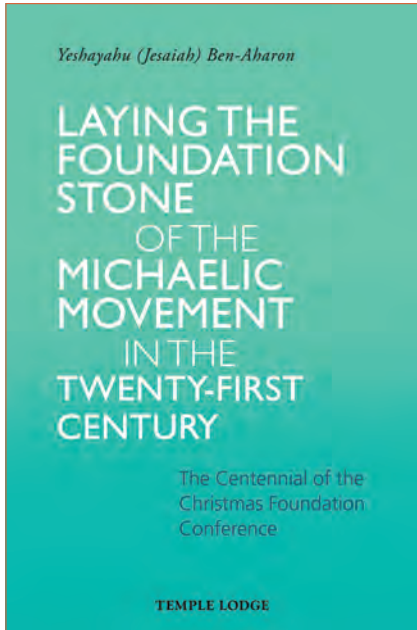

Steiner shows how the mystery schools sought to unite knowledge of nature, the human being and the divine, enabling initiates to experience themselves as participants in a living spiritual cosmos. Through vivid descriptions of initiation, symbolic teachings and sacred centres of learning, he illuminates the transformation of human consciousness and its gradual development towards freedom and self-awareness. Along the way, he offers profound reflections on memory, thinking and the human soul, and the relationship between earthly existence and life before birth and after death.

Rather than calling for a return to ancient traditions, Steiner presents the renewal of mystery wisdom as a vital task for the future. Rich in spiritual insight, Mystery Knowledge and Mystery Centres provides a compelling introduction to Steiner's understanding of the ancient mysteries and their enduring relevance today. Edited with an introduction by Andrew Welburn, this new edition includes explanatory notes and an index.

Yeshayahu (Jesiah) Ben-Aharon Laying the Foundation Stone of the Michaelic Movement in the Twenty-first Century

The Centennial of the Christmas Foundation Conference

'Today, out of the signs of our present times, we let resound the second Mystery Words of Michael: "O Soul of man, know thyself as the spirit, soul, and body chalice of the Christ". When we say this, we have understood what must become the foundation of all aspects of the evolution of humanity in the twenty-first century – the second, decisive, middle century of the Age of Michael.'

The laying of the renewed Foundation Stone took place during the centennial of the Christmas Foundation Conference, at Christmas 2023. This renewed Foundation Stone was formed as an answer to the Michaelic call – 'May human beings hear it!' – resounding a century ago, in Christmas 1923.

The first part of this book contains the lectures given to the Global School of Spiritual Science as preparation for laying the renewed Foundation Stone. Ben-Aharon approaches the Christmas Foundation Conference not as a commemoration of the past but as a living spiritual reality whose deepest intentions remain to be fulfilled. He describes the centenary as a decisive moment in a larger process of transformation that took place in the etheric world after the death of Rudolf Steiner in 1925, and can now be actualized on earth in full consciousness.

The second part features the formation and laying of the renewed Foundation Stone, whilst the third contains the nine public lectures given in the evenings of this centennial event. These describe world history in the light of the present Apocalypse of the age of Michael and the etheric revelation of Christ. The lectures culminate in a description of the meaning of the renewed Foundation Stone, leading from the spiritual crises of the twentieth century toward the possibility of creating a renewed Michaelic movement, school and community.

DR YESHAYAHU (JESIAH) BEN-AHARON is a spiritual scientist, philosopher and social activist who founded Kibbutz Harduf in Israel (1982). He is the author of many books including The Spiritual Event of the Twentieth Century and Cognitive Yoga.

Richard Ramsbotham An Untold Story

Who was Rudolf Steiner? At the beginning of the twentieth century, Rudolf Steiner opened up a whole new way of grasping the significance and import of what we call world history, through the individual human beings who live it, and how it and they are related to and affected by the spiritual world.

It is individual human beings, ultimately, who live history and shape it, in their thinking, their feeling, their doing and sacrifice. Rudolf Steiner pointed out the way to understand history in the light of reincarnation and karma, but of himself and his own role, his karmic biography, he seemed to say but little.

Or did he? One hundred years after Rudolf Steiner's death, Richard Ramsbotham has written what must be considered, at least for now, the definitive karmic biography of Rudolf Steiner. He has dared to answer the question of who Rudolf Steiner was, and is, out of a living relationship with this individuality, and by listening deeply – through the years – into the very words Rudolf Steiner spoke, which continue to tell us more than we thought we knew, or could know.

He has done this by living fully, not only with the past, but with the present moment just as much, fully awake to the dire spiritual situation of the twenty-first century, of the workings of Christ and His adversaries. What is revealed here, in this book, wholly embraces not only the past and the present moment, but shines both light and warmth toward the future, and toward the further working of this individual, for anyone who might wish to meet him, or know him better.

RICHARD RAMSBOTHAM, born in 1962, has worked as a drama teacher, lecturer, theatre director and writer. He is the author of several books and numerous articles on current events, literature and history and the translator of Rudolf Steiner's Four Modern Mystery Dramas (CW 14). He is a co-director of Fourfold Living Arts, which brings together the performing arts with research into spiritual, cultural and contemporary issues.

A Continuous,
 Living Connection

Contributions to Rudolf Steiner's
Supportive Education Course

One hundred years after Rudolf Steiner presented his Supportive Education Course, its impulses continue to inspire educators, therapists, caregivers and communities around the world. More than a historical document, the course remains a living workbook – an enduring source for the development of a truly human, dialogical and inclusive approach to education and care.

In this collaborative volume, a distinguished group of authors explores the contemporary relevance of Steiner's insights and their significance for the future of supportive or special education. Rather than treating the lectures as fixed teachings of the past, the contributors engage with Steiner's method of observation, his profound interest in the individuality of each child, and his search for educational practices grounded in understanding, relationship and responsibility.

Set against the historical background of the Supportive Education Course and informed by present-day experience, this rich collection of essays examines how its impulses can continue to evolve in response to the challenges of our time. The book invites readers to enter into a living dialogue with Steiner's work and to discover new possibilities for developing a personal and communal science and art of supportive education.

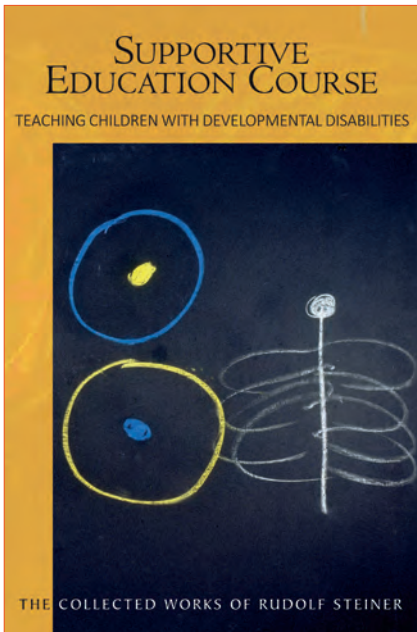

A Continuous, Living Connection is both a centennial reflection and a forward-looking contribution to the ongoing renewal of inclusive educational practice.

JAN C. GOESCHEL is head of the Section for Inclusive Social Development at the Goetheanum's School of Spiritual Science and a long-standing member of the Camphill Movement in North America.

RÜDIGER GRIMM trained as a supportive educator and has been an active member of the Camphill Movement in Germany. He is Secretary of the Curative Education and Social Therapy Council at the Goetheanum and Professor of Supportive Education at Alanus University of Arts and Social Sciences.

Teaching Children with Developmental Disabilities

In the summer of 1924, in the final months of his lecturing career, Rudolf Steiner delivered this groundbreaking, foundational course on anthroposophic therapeutic education. Directed at teachers, physicians, carers and therapists, these twelve lectures weave together spiritual insight, educational practice and compassionate observation, offering a holistic approach to understanding and supporting children with developmental disabilities.

Steiner emphasizes the individuality and inherent dignity of every child, maintaining that effective support must arise from a deep understanding of the relationship between body, soul and spirit. Alongside his exploration of child development and human nature, he presents detailed case studies, discussing conditions such as epilepsy, intellectual disability, behavioural difficulties, memory disorders and kleptomania. Throughout, he gives practical indications for educational work, medical support, therapeutic movement, speech exercises, artistic activities and the cultivation of an appropriate inner attitude on the part of the educator.

A recurring theme is the close connection between education and healing. Steiner calls upon educators to develop powers of observation, empathy, responsibility and self-knowledge, seeing these qualities as essential for meeting the unique needs of each child.

This expanded edition, based on the revised German text and enriched with extensive supplementary materials, offers an important resource for teachers, physicians, therapists, carers and anyone interested in human development, inclusive education and the transformative potential of human-centred pedagogy.

Rudolf Steiner and Ita Wegman Fundamentals of Therapy

Laying the Foundation for an Expansion of the Art of Healing in accordance with Spiritual-Scientific Insights

Bilingual Edition

This is a revised translation by Dr Christina van Tellingén and Dr Ricardo Bartelme. It is the only book written by Rudolf Steiner with a co-author.

Presented in the original German with facing pages in English translation, it introduces a new method of medical practice, complementing natural-scientific medicine through the methods and contents of anthroposophical spiritual science. It does not merely impart information, but permits – even requires – the active reader to undergo a training, a development of new capacities.

These new capacities permit the practitioner to come to insights into the spiritual aspects of illness, healing substances and healing processes. Thus, this book is a guide on the path of initiation into the mysteries of healing, so that the practice of medicine can be truly humanised.

Peter Selg

Far Beyond Our Ordinary Consciousness

Rudolf Steiner's Final Courses,
Dornach, September 1924

'In September 1924, all of us who attended the new courses in Dornach felt we were living far beyond our ordinary consciousness. We felt lifted into another sphere; we all looked different, all seeing and hearing beyond our own capacities. When we looked at one another, we said, Is that really him? It was an incredible and indescribable experience. We were living in a world of spirit that was, of course, far beyond our own powers. There were moments during the final lectures of the pastoral medicine course when Rudolf Steiner emanated so much love and spirit that it was hard to listen to his actual words.'

– Willem Zeylmans van Emmichoven

In this study, Peter Selg illumines the period from 5 to 28 September 1924 in Dornach, when Rudolf Steiner gave seventy lectures in five parallel courses, met regularly with the workers at the Goetheanum, held four hundred individual consultations, and undertook countless initiatives, including sorting out the building application for the second Goetheanum.

Drawing on first-hand accounts, Peter Selg sheds light on the harmony and coherence of these courses, on Rudolf Steiner's intentions and the deeply moving picture of these final weeks in which he accomplished monumental feats, despite his forces being severely depleted. This work culminated in his last address on 28 September 1924, which is also published here.

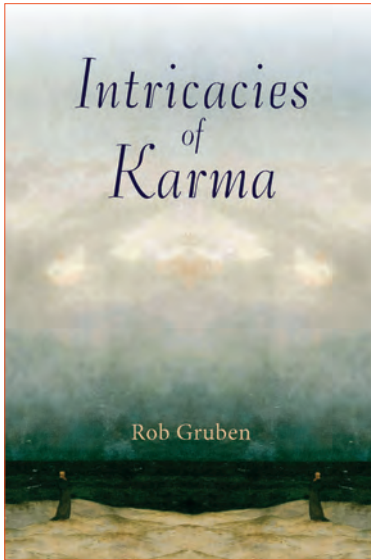

This book is an invaluable resource for anyone seeking to understand the final efforts of Rudolf Steiner to awaken humanity to its most important tasks.

PETER SELG, born 1963, is a medical doctor specializing in child and adolescent psychiatry and psychotherapy. He is head of the Ita Wegman Institute for Basic Research into Anthroposophy in Arlesheim, and co-head of the General Anthroposophical Section of the School of Spiritual Science (Goetheanum, Dornach). He teaches medical anthropology and ethics at the University of Witten/Herdecke and the Alanus University of Arts and Social Sciences in Alfter, Germany. Peter Selg is the author of many dozens of books on anthroposophy.

Rob Gruben Intricacies of Karma

Given that the dual reality of karma and reincarnation form the basis of modern spiritual-scientific investigation, it is of primary importance to gain insight into the themes of one's own life. The substance of our lives, and destiny itself, follow spiritual laws and always appear in the light of a higher purpose. Thus it is possible to describe general or recurring tendencies.

The acceptance and conscious experience of one's own karma eventually leads to spiritual knowledge – knowledge that can be gained only on earth by human beings. So we can be seen as the crown of creation, while higher angelic powers look down with infinite trust upon what only we can bring to them from our lives on earth: love and freedom. This book is a heartfelt attempt to illuminate this mysterious but ever-present subject from different angles, without sensationalism and only calm understanding.

Torin M. Finser Karmic Reconciliation

Clearing a Path for Destiny: A Study Guide
A Workbook for Spiritual-Scientific Study with Excerpts from Works by Rudolf Steiner

This book is intended for students of anthroposophy who are willing to challenge prevailing assumptions about our purpose on Earth, as well as to investigate why we meet certain people and find ourselves in relationships that feel destined. Through human encounters, we have numerous opportunities to resolve 'karmic knots' of the past and to serve the present in new ways.

Karmic Reconciliation can thus serve as a guide and practical aid for living life more fully in ever-awakening consciousness. It takes us below the surface of everyday life to consider the great passages of time from one incarnation to the next. Using Rudolf Steiner's eight volumes of Karmic Relationships, Dr Finser presents fifty-two units of study along with accompanying assignments and provocative questions for meditative contemplation.

Moved by Destiny

Life Stories of Social Engagement

Anthroposophy and Social Reform

This volume is a collection of inspiring biographical and autobiographical essays by and about people who have successfully applied, in different ways, the fundamental insights of Rudolf Steiner's spiritual science to social and practical life: in education, agriculture, business, caring for others, working towards peace, and more.

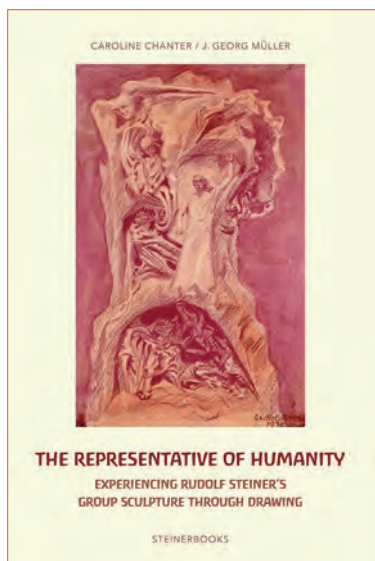

From transforming a business to working with inner city youth in Detroit or working for peace in war-torn countries, each writer relates their inner and outer journey, revealing the threads of destiny which led them to engage with the needs and suffering of the world.

The essays collected here by Christopher Schaefer are meant to help and inspire the healing of social life now, out of the life stories of individuals who have not only been 'moved' by social concerns and destiny, but have themselves taken action and moved things forward.
